

Author visits

We are heading for a busy time in the library and English department. On Thursday 9th of February, local author Joffre White is visiting King Arthur's to work with Y7 students. Joffre's book, 'Frog' is the first in a mini series about a boy who is accidentally transported to another realm, which is peopled by a cast of marvellous characters.

Within two weeks of our return after half term, Emma Craigie, another local author, will be visiting. This time Y9 will work with her because they are studying her book: 'Chocolate Cake with Hitler' as part of their English course.

The third author we have booked to come into school is Dan Freedman. Dan started off as a football journalist, who has interviewed many top flight players, including Rooney and Beckham. Dan is now an author of football related stories for young people and he demonstrates to students how football and literacy can be linked. We hope Dan will be bringing a football coach with him, who will offer practical football skills sessions too. Y8 will benefit from this visit.
